

sidewalk in Hawaiian shirts, smoked cigars and played cards on the hoods of their double- and triple-parked cars while they chatted or stepped into the club on the ground floor for a coffee "Come inside turned on the faucet and stuck his mouth sideways under the water and saw her. Down through the window. In the back of the park, behind the poolhouse. Through a sliver between two buildings. He'd never noticed

